

ABOUT CIVS

CIVS Kenya is a community development agency operating especially in the marginalized and poverty-stricken rural and urban areas of Kenya. We work with local Kenyan communities in order to help them realize their full potential through various projects we organize in different parts of Kenya.

We achieve this aim through its two program areas: International Voluntary Service (IVS) and Community Development

INTERNATIONAL VOLUNTARY SERVICE

It is designed for people who want to participate in making a real difference in the fight against poverty and work with the local people to realize the much needed development. We organize short term, medium and long term and weltwärts project attachments throughout the year for volunteers for them to offer their services as they learn, gain exposure and experience.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

CIVS has established 3 functional Community Resource Centers in Ahero, Awach and Awasi, areas classified among the poorest regions in Kenya. We offer capacity building programs to the local people with focus on Food Security, Water & Sanitation, Vulnerable Children & HIV/AIDS, Vocational Training in ICT, Early Childhood Education, Good Governance and Emergency Relief in order to mitigate the effects of hunger, environmental degradation, diseases and mismanagement of public resources.

Our ECDE and ICT Programs

We have established an Early Childhood Development and Education Program where we provide free education and day time meals to about 150 children who are either orphans or vulnerable to HIV/AIDS and other socio-economic challenges. This has enabled us retain more children in school that could have otherwise turned into school drop outs or street children.

We also offer training in computer ICT and work preparedness to the local youth in order to prepare them for the competitive job market and improve their ICT skills.

PROJECT DETAILS

The Ahero Community Resource Center is a project that was initiated by CIVS in collaboration with the local community in 2009 to strengthen the community's capacity to be self-reliant and to improve their living standards. The Centre does this by demonstrating to the community how to use the locally available resources, to generate their own income. The Center has been serving the local community offering capacity building in a number of diverse programs. The programs include:

Early Childhood Education Program: The center runs a kindergarten with about 90 children who are either vulnerable, orphans or affected with HIV/AIDS. The children receive free education and meals but in the evening they go home to live with caregivers.

ICT and Work preparedness training: The center provides free training in computer skills and work preparedness to the young people to enable them to have an increased ICT access. It also prepares them for the job market by improving their employability.

The model farm: This is an agricultural unit which offers practical oriented training on Agri-Business by providing the community with opportunity to learn how to carry out farming operations and share best practices with them. This project encompasses greenhouses, open farm, chicken unit, fish pond, and other animals. The harvest is sold in the local markets and the proceeds used as a source of income that sustains the activities of the center.

Water and sanitation program: This project is focused on the treatment of tap water to become clean for drinking by the people in the community. The water is also sold at affordable price as part of the income generating activity in the center. The centre is also equipped with comprehensive rainwater harvesting infrastructure to fully utilize the short and heavy rains in.

Community microfinance program: The project started a locally-managed community bank from which groups and individuals can save some money and access financial related services.

Community advocacy program: The center has a training and events hall which provides a space for holding open forums for information sharing and discussion by community members on a regular basis. The center has therefore opened up space where the community members can engage with their leaders; and in turn leaders can share information and community concerns can be raised.

Feeding Program: from time to time the center runs a feeding program by offering lunch for a select group of needy children during school lunch break and during exams. This improves the concentration of the children in class and also their body nutrition. This program depends on availability of food and finances.
